Join NCADV

The National Coalition Against Domestic Violence (NCADV) has worked for more than thirty years to end violence against women by raising awareness and educating the public about the effects of domestic abuse.

Our work includes developing and sustaining ground-breaking public policy at the national level; developing and providing free resources and effective trainings; and assisting the 2,000+ urban and rural shelters and programs at the local, state, and regional levels in the programming they offer to victims seeking safety and assistance.

Membership dues with NCADV help fund:

- Critical programming that assists victim of violence in gaining and maintaining their freedom from abuse;
- NCADV's public policy efforts aimed at educating national leaders on the issue of domestic violence and influencing national legislation, policy and funding decisions that keep victims of violence safe; and
- NCADV trainings and conferences aimed at furthering the most cutting-edge and effective responses to serving victims of domestic violence.
